

Table with 3 columns: Item, Price, and Quantity. Includes 'Dublin Share Market (Yesterday)', 'Mining Comp. of Ireland', 'Royal Canal', and 'Government Funds'.

TO THE HERETICAL BISHOP DR. DALY.

My Lord—They say you are a Calvinist hot and heavy, a flaming and impetuous evangelical who does not care a — for the Pope or the devil. If this be true your character my good Lord, is very enigmatical, because of a verity you are an extravagant wag, and one of the drollest fellows it was ever my good or evil fortune to encounter.

OUR AMERICAN NEWS.

We have received this week, from our New York Correspondent, the authenticated report of Archbishop Hughes' sermon on "the decline of Protestantism and its cause," delivered in New York on Sunday, Nov. 10, which we shall publish in our next.

FREE AMERICA—LIBERTY'S HOUSE.

New Orleans, Louisiana, November 18, 1850. When a man can find nothing else to talk about he sometimes utters eloquent on the state of the weather and the prospects of the farmer, and winds up his oratorical infliction by volunteering an opinion, expresses, after a long and wistful look at the heavenly bodies—that it "looks like rain."

TOWN COUNCIL—MONDAY.

The largest meeting of the above named body we ever witnessed was held on Monday last. Only three members of the corporation were absent. The following are the names of those present: Tower Ward: Aldermen Thos. L. Mackesy and Joseph D. Lapham, Esq. Town Councilors—John Maher, Michael Dobbyn, R. Cooke, & Dr. John Mackesy.

Mr. Clarke—The candidates might wish to make a few remarks, first Mr. Keating, secondly Mr. Power, and lastly himself. Mr. Keating—I have nothing to say; if I am elected I will use my utmost to fill the office. With regard to the allusion made about Mr. Meagher, I was in Germany when the address was drawn up, otherwise I would have signed it—it is also well known that Mr. Meagher was always a friend of mine, and I a supporter of his.

To Advertisers.

As "The News" has, in addition to its own very large number of subscribers, long since added to its list very nearly all the Subscribers of the late "Free-Trade Chronicle" (with which the Proprietor of "The News" was for many years connected).

Circulation over One Thousand Copies!!!

To Correspondents.

Briefly. Bear in mind that a newspaper is not made of countenance. It will not stretch out to accommodate more letter-press than its dimensions can receive; nor is it like an omnibus—constructed to carry twelve, and sometimes made to carry a score.—D. Evelyn Mail.

To Correspondents.

As we go to Press at the minute of Three o'clock every Friday to get in time for the "Evening Post," we shall receive no communication after that same day.

The Waterford News.

FRIDAY EVENING, DECEMBER 8, 1850.

FARMING IN AMERICA.—We were making a calculation, not long since, as to the profits of farming in America, and we find that, after deducting the price of labour, &c., farming cannot be as profitable as many persons in this country imagine.

AN UNPARDONABLE MISTAKE!

A late number of the "Evening Post" assures us that the noisy and defiant bigots of England have succeeded in raising the devil, and that his satanic majesty stalks proudly through the land.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH INSURANCE.

We beg to call attention to an article published elsewhere, headed "Progress of the People" copied from "Chamber's Edinburgh Journal." It speaks in high terms of the Accidental Death Insurance Company, for which Mr. W. H. Harvey is agent in this city.

SHIP AND MATRIMONIAL NEWS.

New Ross, December 3, 1850. The "Empire," emigrant ship, sailed from New Ross for New Orleans. The Captain, Michael Clarke, was married to Miss Magee, on Saturday, at the parish Chapel.—Correspondent.

MORE CONVERSIONS.

The cry is still they come! They rush into the bosom of the church with the precipitation of an avalanche in its fall. Here are the latest:—Mr. J. Maillor, commander of Trinity College, Oxford; and Mr. P. Piggott, commander of Trinity St. John's College; and Mr. J. Hauger, M.A., Pembroke College, Oxford.

Waterford is the only place that will not be represented at the great coming exhibition in London.

At Row-street Police-office, London, on Monday, a man named Sheridan was charged with having written a threatening letter to Lord John Russell. He was committed for want of bail.

To the Editor of the Waterford News.

Tramore, Wednesday.

Sir,—I perceive that a writer in a late number of the "Mail" has stated that Mr. Lane Fox never distributes or extenuates any body. Now, may I ask, who distributed Mr. Hayes, of Tramore, near Tramore, last spring? Only Mr. Hayes was so active in removing his stock he was beggared for ever. But when Mr. Hayes made a clear stage of it, the distributors then deemed it prudent to buy a settlement.

THE SISTER'S CHARITY.

The last number of the "Nation" contained a singularly bad article with reference to the Dublin Municipal Elections. The writer chuckles (ungrateful fellow) at the idea of a few Conservatives getting into the council in place of Corcoran, MacLaughlin (who gave £100 to the new Catholic University), and Maurice O'Connell, one of the best and most eloquent of O'Connell's sons.

BRIEF KNIGHT.—We this week heard a landlord beseeching a farmer to take a piece of ground from him.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE WATERFORD NEWS.

DEAR SIR.—What is the reason that Glave's law is so long about coming down? I thought, after the late meeting in the Town Hall, that one stone would not be long in falling on the heads of those who are in the land; I hope Mr. Clarke will not lose sight of Brandon-street. He is the only man that never forgets his improvements. Yours truly,

A RATE PAYER.

THANKS.

The Sisters of Charity thankfully acknowledge to have received, for the benefit of the poor, the sum of £1 from "A Friend," per the Rev. M. Walsh, St. John's College.

LIMERICK ELECTION.

Limerick will be to the Tenant League what Clare was to the Catholic Association. Each day brings forth things that the League candidate makes his up-hill work less. He was late in the field; and Mr. Gould, a good sort of landlord, who, however, does not grant a solitary lease, had then several promises of support. At present, matters are in such the position of a "tie," with the advantage rather to Mr. Ryan. Tuesday next has been fixed for the election.—"Kilkenny Journal."

Ireland imports £1,000,000 of flax annually, more than she grows here.

The Times says that the majority of the people of Birkenhead are Irish.

Archbishop Hughes, of New York, is going to Home to receive the pallium.

Between Cork and London steamers are conveying butter at one penny per link, and eggs at three half-pence per box.

The Duke of Devonshire has made a reduction of 25 per cent. to his agricultural tenants, in Danganragh, on their last half year's rent.

On Saturday last, Rev. Messrs. Bell and Rogers from the Tenant League, arrived at Newcastle, and addressed a large concourse of persons from the windows of Mr. John Connors's house.

On Sunday Messrs. Lucas and Shea held a Tenant Right meeting in Abbeyfeale, Mr. Justin Supple, solicitor from Tralee, and Rev. Mr. Hurley, of Listowel, attended.

Mr. Tyrann's Irish horse, won the South Lanchester steeple chase handicap of £10 each, £100 added, on Wednesday last.

It is the intention of the Directors of the National Bank to open their Dublin office to General business.

THE PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.

of this city are admirably provided for to my mind. I have seen in Europe, there is a superior clarity hospital, beautifully kept, where the sick are treated as much attention from nurse, priest, and doctor, gratis, as the affluent citizen who pays for a bed-sit. The buildings are very superb, chiefly built of red polished brick, and most regularly ranged. The streets are extremely regular, and spacious. The public squares are delightful, every evening myriads of children are playing, and the streets are filled with the sound of the piano, and the music of the street.

THE PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.

As the season commences, merchants, seamen, traders from every clime crowd the port, and along the vast Levee, or Quay, is to be heard in some of the bar-rooms, the familiar strains of an old Irish pipe, whose proprietor puts on the highest pressure to squeeze out of his music as will bring in the boys, and makes charms for the "Boss" (master). Whilst ever and anon you hear the sonorous nasal organ of the German girls following in company with their lardy gowns, amusing much satisfaction.

THE PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.

Numbers arrive here from California, by every conveyance from Chicago, and every man of them I have met with seem to have brought a considerable quantity of gold-dust with them; the accounts they give of the country are very conflicting; they report, in my belief, according to the success each man has. At all events, I have seen the whole of them quite willing to expend one or two hundred dollars on clothing, watches, &c., which shows no scarcity of funds whatever. The blowing up, or burning, or sinking of a steamer, is not a matter of weekly occurrence, and whether there be lives lost or not, the sympathy is just the same. Every man minds his own business here, and if a neighbour happens to lose his life by a steam-boat accident, why is his own business and the mourners very philosophically deposit their grief in the same tomb as the deceased, and when once it is buried, the general race takes place, and no more is thought of the unlucky wight who thought proper to "cock his toes."

THE PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.

In a few days I will forward a description of the law and order observable in this state; race-courses, theatres, &c., &c.

The citizens of New York are very fond of balls, evening parties, and other amusements.

THE PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.

Mr. Keating moved that if more than two candidates appeared, the polling should take place, and the two highest be then put forward on the second poll.

THE PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.

Dr. T. L. Mackesy rose and in very eloquent terms proposed Mr. Keating as a fit and proper person to fill the civic chair for the ensuing year. He was confident of Mr. Keating being well known, and he echoed the voice of the citizens of Waterford by saying that a better or more fitting selection could not be made.

THE PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.

Mr. Michael Phelan seconded the proposition, and considered Mr. Keating a very fit and proper person to fill the office of Chief Magistrate.

THE PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.

Mr. Keating said he had great pleasure in seconding him—every person, he was sure, could not fail to be aware of his claims; he is an old and respected citizen of Waterford, a good and generous employer—and your unpaid servant on public boards, those many years. Fellow-citizens, this is the only boon you can now give him for his long services—he asks no more. He (Mr. Keating) need not say it is not for the sake of the pithy sum he would wish to be appointed, as it is well known his payments in one week is over that amount; but the fact is his only ambition is to have to say that his acts and services have been appreciated by his fellow-citizens, and he (Mr. K.) had no hesitation in saying that his election would give entire satisfaction.

THE PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.

Mr. Strange then came forward and stated he had a candidate to propose, who was Mr. Thomas Clarke (cheers). He would give a few reasons why he proposed that gentleman. Some would take one view of the office, others may take another view; the proper one is payment for past services. He did not wish to compete with the other candidates put forth, but the payment of past services should be the only object in view when making a selection for the office of Mayor. When Mr. Clarke called on him first, he stated if no other candidate more worthy was proposed, he would support him. That time has not appeared—no one more worthy has been proposed (hear, hear). Mr. Clarke has been 30 years labouring for you and many are the advantages derived by you in consequence of his exertions. He (Mr. Strange) would just repeat a few of Mr. C's acts and then leave him in your hands. In the year 1819 he wrote an excellent and useful work called the "History of Intolerance." In 1837 he was the first to aid in establishing the Mechanics' Institute—great are the advantages derived from that admirable institution (hear, hear). In 1833 when Catholic Emancipation wanted a friend he threw himself into it, and worked nobly for its attainment (hear, hear). He (Mr. Strange) did not mean to introduce politics into that council, but

POPULATION OF NEW YORK.

The following tabular statements will be found valuable in connection with this brief review of New York City, as indicating its steady and almost unparalleled progress in population within the last 150 years:—

Table with 4 columns: Year, Population, and other data. Shows population growth from 1696 to 1850.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

P. Cox, treasurer to the St. Vincent de Paul Society, begs to acknowledge the receipt of £2 to purchase straw and fuel for the poor.

PREVIOUS TO THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

Previous to the American Revolution, a leader statue of one of the "English Georges" stood in the Bowling Green, but the "Liberty boys" pulled the thing down, and melted it and recast the lead into bullets, which were afterwards fired at the British troops. May's redeco got his death by an overdose of King George III. Years afterwards a marble statue of King Philip, Earl of Chatham, occupied the same spot. Time's changes have transferred a mutilated remnant of the latter sculpture to an obscure corner in the yard of Tom Kelly's hotel, in West Broadway.—N. Y. paper.

PREVIOUS TO THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

Previous to the American Revolution, a leader statue of one of the "English Georges" stood in the Bowling Green, but the "Liberty boys" pulled the thing down, and melted it and recast the lead into bullets, which were afterwards fired at the British troops. May's redeco got his death by an overdose of King George III. Years afterwards a marble statue of King Philip, Earl of Chatham, occupied the same spot. Time's changes have transferred a mutilated remnant of the latter sculpture to an obscure corner in the yard of Tom Kelly's hotel, in West Broadway.—N. Y. paper.

PREVIOUS TO THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

Previous to the American Revolution, a leader statue of one of the "English Georges" stood in the Bowling Green, but the "Liberty boys" pulled the thing down, and melted it and recast the lead into bullets, which were afterwards fired at the British troops. May's redeco got his death by an overdose of King George III. Years afterwards a marble statue of King Philip, Earl of Chatham, occupied the same spot. Time's changes have transferred a mutilated remnant of the latter sculpture to an obscure corner in the yard of Tom Kelly's hotel, in West Broadway.—N. Y. paper.

PREVIOUS TO THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

Previous to the American Revolution, a leader statue of one of the "English Georges" stood in the Bowling Green, but the "Liberty boys" pulled the thing down, and melted it and recast the lead into bullets, which were afterwards fired at the British troops. May's redeco got his death by an overdose of King George III. Years afterwards a marble statue of King Philip, Earl of Chatham, occupied the same spot. Time's changes have transferred a mutilated remnant of the latter sculpture to an obscure corner in the yard of Tom Kelly's hotel, in West Broadway.—N. Y. paper.

PREVIOUS TO THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

Previous to the American Revolution, a leader statue of one of the "English Georges" stood in the Bowling Green, but the "Liberty boys" pulled the thing down, and melted it and recast the lead into bullets, which were afterwards fired at the British troops. May's redeco got his death by an overdose of King George III. Years afterwards a marble statue of King Philip, Earl of Chatham, occupied the same spot. Time's changes have transferred a mutilated remnant of the latter sculpture to an obscure corner in the yard of Tom Kelly's hotel, in West Broadway.—N. Y. paper.

PREVIOUS TO THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

Previous to the American Revolution, a leader statue of one of the "English Georges" stood in the Bowling Green, but the "Liberty boys" pulled the thing down, and melted it and recast the lead into bullets, which were afterwards fired at the British troops. May's redeco got his death by an overdose of King George III. Years afterwards a marble statue of King Philip, Earl of Chatham, occupied the same spot. Time's changes have transferred a mutilated remnant of the latter sculpture to an obscure corner in the yard of Tom Kelly's hotel, in West Broadway.—N. Y. paper.

PREVIOUS TO THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

Previous to the American Revolution, a leader statue of one of the "English Georges" stood in the Bowling Green, but the "Liberty boys" pulled the thing down, and melted it and recast the lead into bullets, which were afterwards fired at the British troops. May's redeco got his death by an overdose of King George III. Years afterwards a marble statue of King Philip, Earl of Chatham, occupied the same spot. Time's changes have transferred a mutilated remnant of the latter sculpture to an obscure corner in the yard of Tom Kelly's hotel, in West Broadway.—N. Y. paper.

